Dear Bob - I'm so glad to hear from you and was very glad, of course, to hear you performing at The Chilton Club. I think you unhinged some wonderful Yankee listeners from their proper straight chairs and had them giving voice to their engagement by evening's end.

I particularly liked the timeline thread of musical origins you spun out for us, beginning with (was it?) 1820ish and moving past WWII. I was about to ask the "stride" question myself when the lady in the middle put it forth.

And what a nice thought that the human hand and brain was competing with the player piano for complexity and density of notes! It's like the champion chess players today trying to beat the machine...

thanks for playing and saying to us all.

Cheers, David R (David Rockefeller Jr.)
